Enjoyable, exciting, and easy --- the use of literature to support important character traits, teach key guidance concepts, and help children learn to deal with specific issues! Hands-on activities help you delve into wonderful children's books you can use in classroom guidance lessons, small group counseling, and with individual students. Significant issues such as friendship, feelings, communication, decision making, and other topics will be addressed.

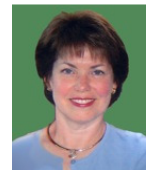

Take away complementary activities and lots of practical ideas you can use the very next day!

In particular, you will:

- learn how the use of bibliotherapy books can help address children's issues, such as divorce, friendship, moving, bullying, and others in classroom guidance lessons, small groups and individual counseling
- examine some specific books, develop lessons using the books, and learn about activities that complement the books
- discover resources, booklists, and websites for bibliotherapy

A certificate for 3 Professional Growth Points will be available for educators or 3 Continuing Education Units for LCSWs, LSWs, LMHCs, and LMFTs.
